

BRIGHAM YOUNG UNIVERSITY

SINGERS

Directed by Dr. Andrew Crane, BYU Singers receives enthusiastic responses for its remarkable artistry and distinctive style. Since its formation by Dr. Ronald Staheli in 1984, BYU Singers has attracted international acclaim for spellbinding performances of music from a variety of genres, ranging from Renaissance motets to African-American spirituals. Maurice Casey, former president of the American Choral Directors Association, called BYU Singers “one of the premier choral organizations in the country.”

“Brigham Young University Singers is a brilliant and fresh-voiced ensemble [with] razor-sharp intonation. Also conspicuous are their satiny smoothness and warm beauty of tone. Their interpretive virtues include youthfully intense emotional depth and touching spirituality.”

American Record Review