

The Group

Mountain Strings is composed of talented instrumentalists, who perform on a variety of traditional folk instruments, including fiddle, mandolin, banjo, dulcimer, piano, guitar, bass, and accordion. These instrumentalists also double as vocalists and percussionists, keeping rhythm on unique instruments like cajon, bones, spoons, and bodhran (a Celtic drum). In addition to performing, the group enjoys educating its audiences about the history of the music it plays and the historic importance of the group's unique instruments.

Outreach Efforts

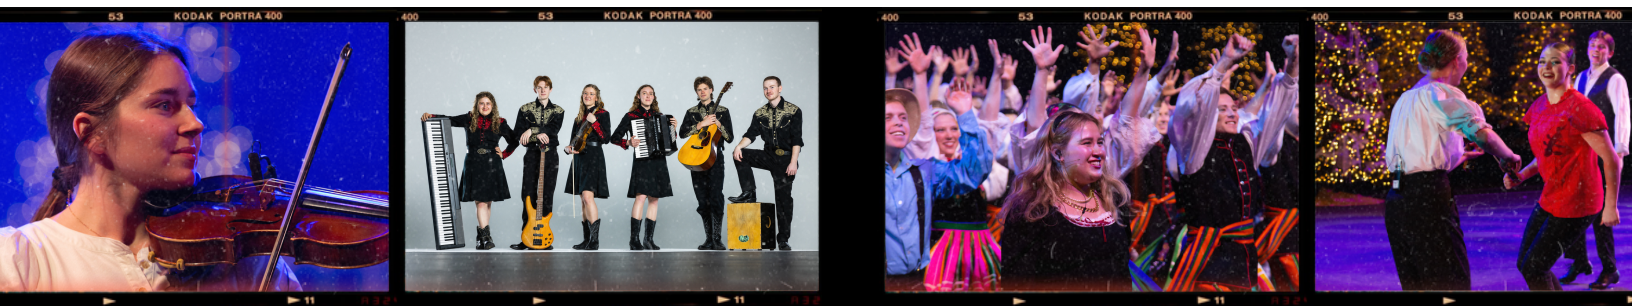

BYU Mountain Strings shares the power of folk music through educational outreach, cultural exchange, and faith-centered performances. Their efforts include school visits, university collaborations, firesides, and community concerts at home and abroad.

As BYU's premier touring orchestra, Mountain Strings is equipped to:

- Perform traditional music for audiences young and old
- Educating audiences about the origins of folk music and traditions
- Teach young audiences about traditional folk instruments and how to play them

What a wonderful evening...thanks to you and your excellent young musicians...whose spontaneity and excitement about their art seems to flow like a fountain.
